Tim Martin has extensive experience as an arbitrator, mediator, expert and counsel, with particular expertise in the energy, oil and gas, project infrastructure and construction sectors. He has been a sole arbitrator, party appointed arbitrator, institution appointed arbitrator and tribunal chair in institutional and ad hoc international and domestic arbitrations. He has also acted as counsel, mediator, expert witness and strategic advisor in the resolution of a wide range of disputes.

Tim has over 35 years of experience in the international oil and gas and infrastructure industries where he was general counsel, country manager, finance director, commercial manager and economist, working in more than 50 countries on some of the largest energy projects in the world. His transactional and disputes work includes joint venture agreements, farmout agreements, sale and purchase agreements, oil service agreements, EPC contracts and host government contracts.

Tim has been counsel in international boundary disputes arising from oil and gas concessions that straddled disputed international boundaries and in sovereignty disputes in domestic courts. He has managed litigation strategy for complex, multi-jurisdictional disputes in national courts in North America, Europe, the Middle East, Latin America and Asia.

Governments and companies have retained Tim as an expert in a number of high-profile energy disputes. He has wide-ranging experience in various legal systems including common law, civil law, shariah law and the communist legal system. His business sector experience includes: energy, oil and gas, refining, petrochemicals, mining, infrastructure, construction, international trade and investment, regulatory and administrative, compliance (anti-corruption, sanctions and boycott law), and finance and banking.

Tim has advised governments, industry organisations, and international and national oil companies on dispute resolution matters. He has organised and chaired the leading annual conference on dispute resolution in the international oil and gas business, co-sponsored by the Association of International Petroleum Negotiators (AIPN) and leading international arbitration institutions around the world.

Tim is a fellow and Chartered Arbitrator of the CIArb, a board director of the American Arbitration Association and a member of the London Court of International Arbitration. He has been elected to the arbitrator panels of the International Centre for Dispute Resolution, the ICC International Court of Arbitration, the Singapore International Arbitration Centre, the Kuala Lumpur Regional Arbitration

Centre, the Bahrain Chamber of Dispute Resolution and the Energy Arbitrators List.

Tim is the chair of the Journal of World Energy Law and Business, the leading journal on international energy, which is published by Oxford University Press. Tim co-chairs the AIPN's model international dispute resolution agreement committee and has published and spoken extensively on dispute resolution and energy issues throughout the world.

Tim was President of the AIPN, twice voted its Member of the Year and has received its prestigious President's Award and Legacy Award. He has had leadership roles in a number of other industry organisations.

Peers, leading arbitration institutions and industry publications have described Tim as the "go-to guy for energy disputes", "the best around for energy disputes", an "industry specialist and arbitrator", a "true innovator in international oil and gas law", and a "true expert in the oil and gas sector".
